In the 18th century, Sr. Rosalie was vital to the founders of the SVDP Society in their work to help neighbors in need. The headdress looks distinguishing now, but in her day, the cornette was a fashionable attire for the women of Paris! As a Daughter of Charity, she visited the sick and the poor and was beloved by many. She was a great advisor and taught them "to serve the poor well, always speaking to them with great kindness".
